ABOUT MATHED 2025

The Department proudly presents MATHED 2025: The 3rd International Conference on Manufacturing, Thermal, and Design Engineering. Building on the success of MATHED 2022 and MATHED 2024, this year's conference will offer both online and offline participation, ensuring a broader global reach and enhanced collaboration. MATHED 2025 serves as a premier platform for knowledge exchange, showcasing cutting-edge innovations in design, thermal, and manufacturing engineering. The conference emphasizes multidisciplinary collaboration, sustainable solutions, and stronger industry-academia partnerships, bridging the gap between research and real-world applications.

ABOUT THE DEPARTMENT:

The Department of Mechanical Engineering at NIT Hamirpur, established in 1986 alongside the then Regional Engineering College Hamirpur, initially served as a supporting department for other disciplines. The Department launched its B.Tech program in Mechanical Engineering in 1994 and has since grown into a center of excellence, offering M.Tech and Ph.D. programs in Design, Thermal, and Manufacturing. With a strong teaching curriculum, innovative methodologies, and a well-funded research program, the department continues to foster academic and research excellence.
